The Emmet base ball team played a return game with the Brockway's on Friday last resulting in a victory for Brockway of 22 to 9. It was the latter club's superior battery that did the work. The Emmet boys did some sharp playing but got left at the bat. Brockway Centre should have a base ball team and will have in the course of a week, as officers have been elected and a subscription paper largely signed by our citizens for the same. We would like to see a game between Old Brockway and Brockway Centre on the Fourth of July.

The following items we clip from the Capac Argus of June 4:

"A. Phillips, of Brockway Centre, was in town last week."

"Rev. Wallace is holding revival meetings at Brockway Centre this week."

"Miss Allie Black, of Brockway Centre, is visiting her sister Mrs. E. B. Fuller."

"A. D. Dean, of Brockway Centre, was in town Wednesday looking for an opportunity to exchange his B. C. property for land in this vicinity. He proposes if he finds anything to suit him, to engage in the small fruit culture, having had experience in the business near Pontiac."

"Last Friday night constable George Hunter was given a warrant to serve on Michael Kissane, on a charge of stealing. The object of his search was found this side of Brockway Centre washing sheep. Geo. told him of his mission, and there served the papers. When he found he was to be brought to Capac he was determined not to go, and jumping into a wagon close by seized an ax, holding it above his head saying 'you come any further and I'll brain you.' This being constable Hunter's first introduction to the perils of his office and not wishing to have his brains scattered on the ground, he did not force himself any nearer. He got into his buggy drove to Lothian's and deputised Robt. as constable and then drove back. Robt. stepped up to him and told him he would have to go, and he said he wouldn't, and struck him with the ax. Being close to him it did not have any effect. Seeing there was no use trying to take him then, they took his uncle's word for his appearance Saturday morning. He came next morning and was brought before Justice Bottomley. He waived examination and was bound over under $200 bail, and was given until night to get it, but could not. At about 6:30 o'clock officer Hunter turned him over to officer Kelley. About an hour later while consulting with his friends they got into a quarrel and during the jangle he made a 'sneak' and has not been heard from since. It was a pitiful job for his escape."

LOST AND SAVED.

Last Thursday evening the largest audience that has yet graced Central Hall gathered to listen to the Temperance Cantata, "Lost and Saved." This cantata was put on under the management of C. Cooper, for the benefit of the M. E. Sabbath School. The high character of the play renders its proper presentation necessary matter; yet the parts were taken so well as to do great credit to the performers, and leave but little chance for censure by the most fastidious critic.

The character Miss Alice Leith, afterwards Mrs. Harry Gray taken by Miss Ada Langdon, was rendered in such a natural manner as to seem a real picture of life. Miss Lillie Cooper as Kittie Gray would have been difficult to excel. The characters of Mrs. Gray and Little Kittie well illustrated the suffering and degradation that a husband and father can bring upon his innocent family. J. C. Holden as Harry Gray, the lost and saved, rendered well a part by no means easy. The characters Mr. and Mrs. Howard Vane assumed by Walter Wells and Miss Ida Boyd were well sustained. In these parts were especially well rendered, Miss Gustie Cooper as Miss Betsey Sharp, an old maid, assumed her part in an excellent manner. Her methods of courtship caused much merriment in the audience. Her conduct in this respect, and as an advocate of temperance showed what a woman can do in cases of necessity. The character Mr. Jenks, the bashful man, was well represented by Will Holden. The parts of Mr. and Mrs. Smith were sustained excellently by H. H. Holden and Miss Althea Rollins. W. W. Cowing represented Lawyer Smirk in an able manner. His arguments with Miss Sharp illustrated in a very lucid way the respective positions of the temperance and whisky elements of society at the present time. It would be difficult to find a better representative landlord than Henry Pearce made as Old Grim; while James Cooper, Chas. Townsend, Gray Holden, Jimmy Grinnell and W. W. Cowing as Old Grim's customers played their parts so well as to bring shouts of applause from the audience. The singing by Miss Annie Merritt, Mrs. Higgins and Miss Sarah Gator, as the women crusaders, and of Miss Edna Rapley, Miss Sarah Gator and Miss Nettie Bell as Faith, Hope and Charity was excellent. The tableaux shown during the evening were expressive and well adapted to the occasion. The music rendered by the actors and scenes by Mrs. H. H. Holden and Chas. High, was excellent and well appreciated by the audience. Several of the players during the evening received bouquets. The audience were attentive and seemed to appreciate the play very much. The total receipts of the evening were $57.10. We believe that the moral effects of this play will be considerable, as a means of illustrating the winning curse of intemperance. A vivid and instructive drama. This drama played so ably as it was, is worth a half-dozen temperance lectures.

A Happy Family

Circle is the greatest blessing of our civilization, but such a thing is not possible when disease and death lurks on the threshold. One of the most important matters to be attended to, is that the Liver and Kidneys are in a healthy condition. Parnelee's Dyspepsia, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver pills will prevent and cure all these difficulties with great certainty. Large bottles $1. Sold by C. A. Wells & Co.
